Symptom Reduction & Elimination of Inhaler Usage in COPD Patient

Dr. Chen-Ying Huang, DAOM, WA

A physically active 64-year old female presented with COPD and Emphysema. She was consistently dealing with shortness of breath, spasmodic coughing episodes, and suboccipital headaches resulting from coughing that interfered with her daily life. She had tried using an inhaler and other supplements with little to no relief.

After examination, Dr. Huang suggested acupuncture and Wei Laboratories Soup A, Soup B, LC Balancer, and Jade.

Before treatment, the patient experienced a 7/10 for shortness of breath, 10/10 for coughing, and 10/10 for headaches. Just nine days after starting treatment, she discontinued using her inhaler. After one month of treatment with the Wei formulas and three sessions of acupuncture, the shortness of breath was a 2/10, coughing was a 0/10, and headaches was a 0/10. Three months later, the results have been sustained.
